Running it at home

Start with the easy cards. Read one aloud, let your child answer, then say the answer from the key and add one sentence of your own. Move up a level only when the easy set feels comfortable. Ten minutes is plenty.

Running it as a class game

- Two teams. Shuffle one level's cards. A team gets a point for a correct answer; the other team may steal if the first one misses.
- Pass the card. Kids sit in a circle and pass a card around while you count down. Whoever holds it answers.
- Quiz sheet. Hand out the sheet for one level as a quiet 10-minute check, then go over it together. Or print the cards on cardstock and keep them in a box for the whole year.

Names and wording

The symbol ﷺ after the Prophet's name stands for "salla Allahu alayhi wa sallam," which is "peace and blessings of Allah be upon him." Say it aloud when you read it, and remind children to say it when they hear his name. There are no pictures of the Prophet ﷺ or of his companions in this pack. The pictures show places and objects only.

Where the answers come from

Answers that come from the Quran carry the verse number in the article that goes with this pack. Details of his life (names of family members, places, his age) are taught in the seerah and are widely agreed. Questions about disputed dates, battles and how he looked were left out on purpose. If you want to go deeper, ask your local imam or teacher.
